Guest Speaker - Dick Rutan

"Aviation Adventures"

Wednesday, Aug. 25, 2004

Voyager Aircraft's non-stop and unrefueled flight around the world in December of 1986 placed Dick Rutan in the history books. The Voyager story is one of tremendous courage, of vision, and of adventure and is often referred to as "aviation's last first."

But Dick Rutan has many other aviation adventures to share including a trek to the North Pole in 2000 and an attempt to make the first ever flight around the world in a balloon in 1998.

Dick received both his solo pilot's license and driver's licence on his sixteenth birthday. At nineteen, he joined the Air Force Aviation Cadet Program and served as an Air Force pilot for two decades. He then joined his brother as Production Manager and Chief Test Pilot at Rutan Aircraft Factory. He resigned and founded Voyager Aircraft, Inc. in 1981 which culminated in the historic Voyager flight.

One of Dick's 2002 projects is test flying the EZ-Rocket, a modified Experimental Long-EZ, serving as a test bed for reusable rocket engines developed by XCOR Aerospace.
